

Due to recent changes in border security laws, requests for passports have skyrocketed. This has created a major backlog at passport processing agencies across the country, as well as major headaches for folks who need their passport for an upcoming trip. Congress is working to reduce the wait time and streamline the process, but it won't happen overnight.

Here are some quick links on information to help apply for a passport, track the status of your passport request, or find out when you need to have a passport to travel out of the country:
